EUSSO - JAPANESE TERMS. Report That Britain Has Modified System Denounced in House of Motion on Armaments.

> The Hague, July 29.—It is asserted that after long conferences, in which Sir Edward Fry (Great Britain), Baron Marschall von Bieberstein (Germany), M. Bourgeois (France), Count Tornielli (Italy) and M. Nelidoff (Russia) took part, the British delegation has consented to suppress from their proposal for the limitation of armaments the words "urgent necessity," which were

Baron Marschall von Bieberstein some time ago received instructions from Berlin to oppose the wording of this proposal. Germany does not admit that this question is more urgent to-day than it was in 1896, and she contends that it is impossible to acknowledge the urgency of disarmament when no practical scheme has yet been devised for the reduction of military burdens

The Hague, July 29.—Great Britain and Germany have practically agreed on a proposal regarding the establishment of an international prize court, under the terms of which the tribunal is made permanent and is to have fifteen judges. The United States, Japan and six of the great European powers will furnish one judge each, Latin America will supply two and the re-maining five will be sent from other countries represented in the peace conference. It is understood further that if the American proposal regarding the establishment of a permanent court of arbitration is adopted (and this seems most likely) the judges of the arbitration court will be also the judges of the prize court. The prize court is to include two admirals, to be appointed by the belligerents, but to be present in an advisory capacity only. This sugges-tion was made by Joseph H. Choate, of the

Lords—Government's Reply.

London, July 29 .- "The system of government in the Congo Independent State is one of unre-strained tyranny, enforced by the lash and the bullet, by cruelty and by murder." These words were spoken by Lord Monkswell, who raised the Congo question in the House of Lords to-day and moved for the papers. The attendance in the House was slight.

Lord Monkswell said the Congo government was a powerful engine of greed, which impudently and insolently violated the limitations and restrictions under which its rights over this territory had been granted. The speaker quoted authorities to support his statements, and added that a special responsibility at-tached to Great Britain because, except for her determined action, the King of Portugal and not the King of the Belgians would at this noment have been the ruler of the Congo. The Archbishop of Canterbury said that the Congo was one of the most disheartening and humiliating of contemporary questions. He said it was a ghastly irony to read to-day the words of the address presented to King Leopold by the City of London in 1884, congratulat-ing his majesty on his "bloodless victory." He added that the British government should be reminded of the sense of responsibility of all Englishmen in this matter.

A general debate on the Congo question followed, and a number of bishops were among the speakers. The Earl of Mayo solvocated anthe speakers. The Earl of Mayo advocated another international convention on the Congo, and, failing that, the appointment of more British consuls in the Upper Congo. Lord Fitzmaurice, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, speaking for the government, said the officials were not bilnd to the fact that this matter was surrounded with grave difficulties. The government had asked the Congo State, he said, not to disregard the experiences of presaid, not to disregard the experiences of pre-vious governments of native states, and had instanced the early history of British East India. The present system, the speaker said, was certain to have evil consequences. Lord Fitzmaurice admitted that the House of Lords had a right to ask what progress had been made, but said it was an international ques-tion, and if the House took any rash action it would run the risk of injuring the cause which it had at heart.

At the conclusion of Lord Fitzmaurice's ad-dress Lord Monkswell withdrew his motion.

After choking and attempting to assault Mrs. Hans Swanson, thirty-four years old, of No. 411 East 123d street, four men threatened to kill her husband if he told the police. The attack happened early yesterday morning, but because of these threats it was not reported to the police until last Swanson left his wife on Sunday night to visit friends, and as he had no key she did not lock the loor when she retired.

"Did you enjoy yourself?" 'asked Mrs. Swanson, as the door to the flat opened shortly after 1 o'clock in the morning. She thought that it was

She was grasped by the throat and thrust back upon the pillows. Some one lit a match, and the woman saw four men standing in the room, one of them bending over her bed, still holding her by

HATE TO GIVE UP BONDS.

Holders of United States 4 Per Cents Slow in Presenting Them.

[From The Tribune Bureau.] Washington, July 29—The holders of the 4 per cent thirty-year bonds of the funded loan of 1907, which were due on July 1, are showing great reluctance in surrendering them. An attempt by the Treasury to get the bonds in before the date of their maturity was largely unsuccessful, although fair premiums were offered. The interest on the bonds ceased with their maturity, but there are $13,000,000 worth of them still unpre-sented and Treasury officials believe that the reluctance of the people to give them up is largely responsible for this condition.

There were outstanding in December last proximately $116,000,000 of these 4s. Se tary Shaw, wishing to get a portion of them in before the end of the fiscal year, offered to re-deem $10,000,000 worth of them, paying for them 101½ flat. The offer brought in only $3,000,000. A similar offer two months later was hardly more successful. In March an offer was made to re-deem $25,000,000, paying full interest to the date of maturity. This offer met with fair success, as did an offer a month later to exchange 2 per cent bonds for twice that amount. This left about $36,000,000 outstanding when they were finally due, and some of this amount has been coming in slowly and at a decreasing rate. The inflow has now practically stopped, with $13,000,000 still outstanding.

Great numbers of holders of these securities have written personal letters to the Secretary of the Treasury in sending them in for redemp-tion. Many protest against giving them up, ask for extensions of time and inquire about similar securities. These protests were from people who held them as investments. The government has nothing to offer in their place except a new 2 per cent bond, and of these $50,000,000 were issued in exchange for the old bonds.

Records of similar redemptions lead the offi-dals in charge of the present work to believe that many thousands of dollars' worth of these bonds will never be presented. Definite information has been received telling of the loss or destruction of many bonds and stopping payment on them. One large lot is known to have been lost at sea, while there are instances of destruction by fire recorded.

Of the funded loan of 1891, which fell due in 1900, there is $32,000 unpaid and unaccounted for. Of the 5 per cent bonds due on February 2, 1904, there is $36,800 still unpaid. There is an old account of unclaimed monay in the redemption division amounting to money in the redemption division amounting to $931,415.25 in 1861. Now the figures run far above the million mark, and evidently will be greatly augmented from the present redempt

Coffee and Meats Aided-Little Hope for Reciprocity.

Washington, July 29.-A cable dispatch to the State Department to-day from Ambassador White confirmed the press report that the French government had extended from August 1 until October 31 the operation of the decree which permits Porto Rican coffee to enter France at the minimum tariff rate. The de partment already had been advised that the French government had consented to accept as sufficient the meat certificates of the American Department of Agriculture, though the order in this case also is only temporary, in both cases the purpose of the French government ing some satisfactory tariff agreement

In the case of the ment certificates, it is ex-pected that the result of the new order will be The insistence of the French government on the old microscopic tests after they had been discontinued has put a stop to all shipments of American meats into France for the last year, and it is hoped that the new order will reopen that trade. Inquiry here develops the fact that the admin istration is proceeding on the theory that there has been no such change indicated in the tariff views of the majority of the United States Senate as would warrant negotiations looking to the preparation of a general reciprocity treaty with France, in lieu of that which has for several years remained unapproved in the Senate. The same statement also applies to a reciprocity treaty with Germany, and, indeed, with any other country. So all that is now in ontemplation in the matter of tariff arrangements is the modification of the special agree-ments drawn under Section 3 of the Dingley act, of which the new German arrangement is a fair sample.

The reductions already granted to certain French articles apply only to imports into the United States from France and Algeria, whereas other French colonies in different parts of the globe might profit if the same privilege were extended to them.
